Dear Secretary General,

I am truly honoured to nominate Professor Ugljesa Grusic as a new candidate for associate membership of the International Academy of Comparative Law.

I have known Professor Grusic since 2013 and I have always admired his dedication and outstanding scholarship in the fields of private international law, comparative employment law and international dispute resolution.

Professor Grusic, originally from Serbia, and recently appointed as Professor of Private International Law at University College London, UK, is an internationally recognised scholar in his fields of expertise. His exemplary career is marked by innovative research, impactful contributions, and a commitment to advancing knowledge.

Throughout his career, Professor Grusic has published an extensive array of scholarly articles in highly regarded journals, book contributions, as well as monographs and edited books, significantly advancing the discourse in private international law. Notably, his work on private international law of employment has not only garnered widespread recognition but has also set the benchmark for future research in the field.

He has been invited to present at numerous international conferences, and he actively participates in many international research projects, including one I co-lead with Professor Hans van Loon, on Sustainable Migration and Private International Law, where his insights have sparked dialogue and collaboration among leading experts.

In addition to his research accomplishments, Professor Grusic is an outstanding educator and mentor. He has demonstrated an unwavering commitment to nurturing the next generation of scholars, providing guidance and support to students and junior colleagues alike. His dedication to fostering academic growth within the scholarly community perfectly aligns with the values of the Academy.

Professor Grusic's collaborative spirit and high standards of professionalism make him an ideal candidate for associate membership in the International Academy of Comparative Law.
